Footer

Header and Footer elements

Header

Bamboo Icon
-   Links to homepage

About/Portfolio/Blogs/Contact
- Links to each page of website
- When hovered over they enlarge
- When visited they turn a dark green
- Depending on screen view text and header will shrink

Footer

GitHub/LinkedIn/Instagram
- Links to each site
- Easy to accesses information
- Footer is shorter than header to add some differences to the page

Some pages on the site have different header and footer background-colours. To organise these two separate components, two header and footer SASS files were created to import to their respective pages.
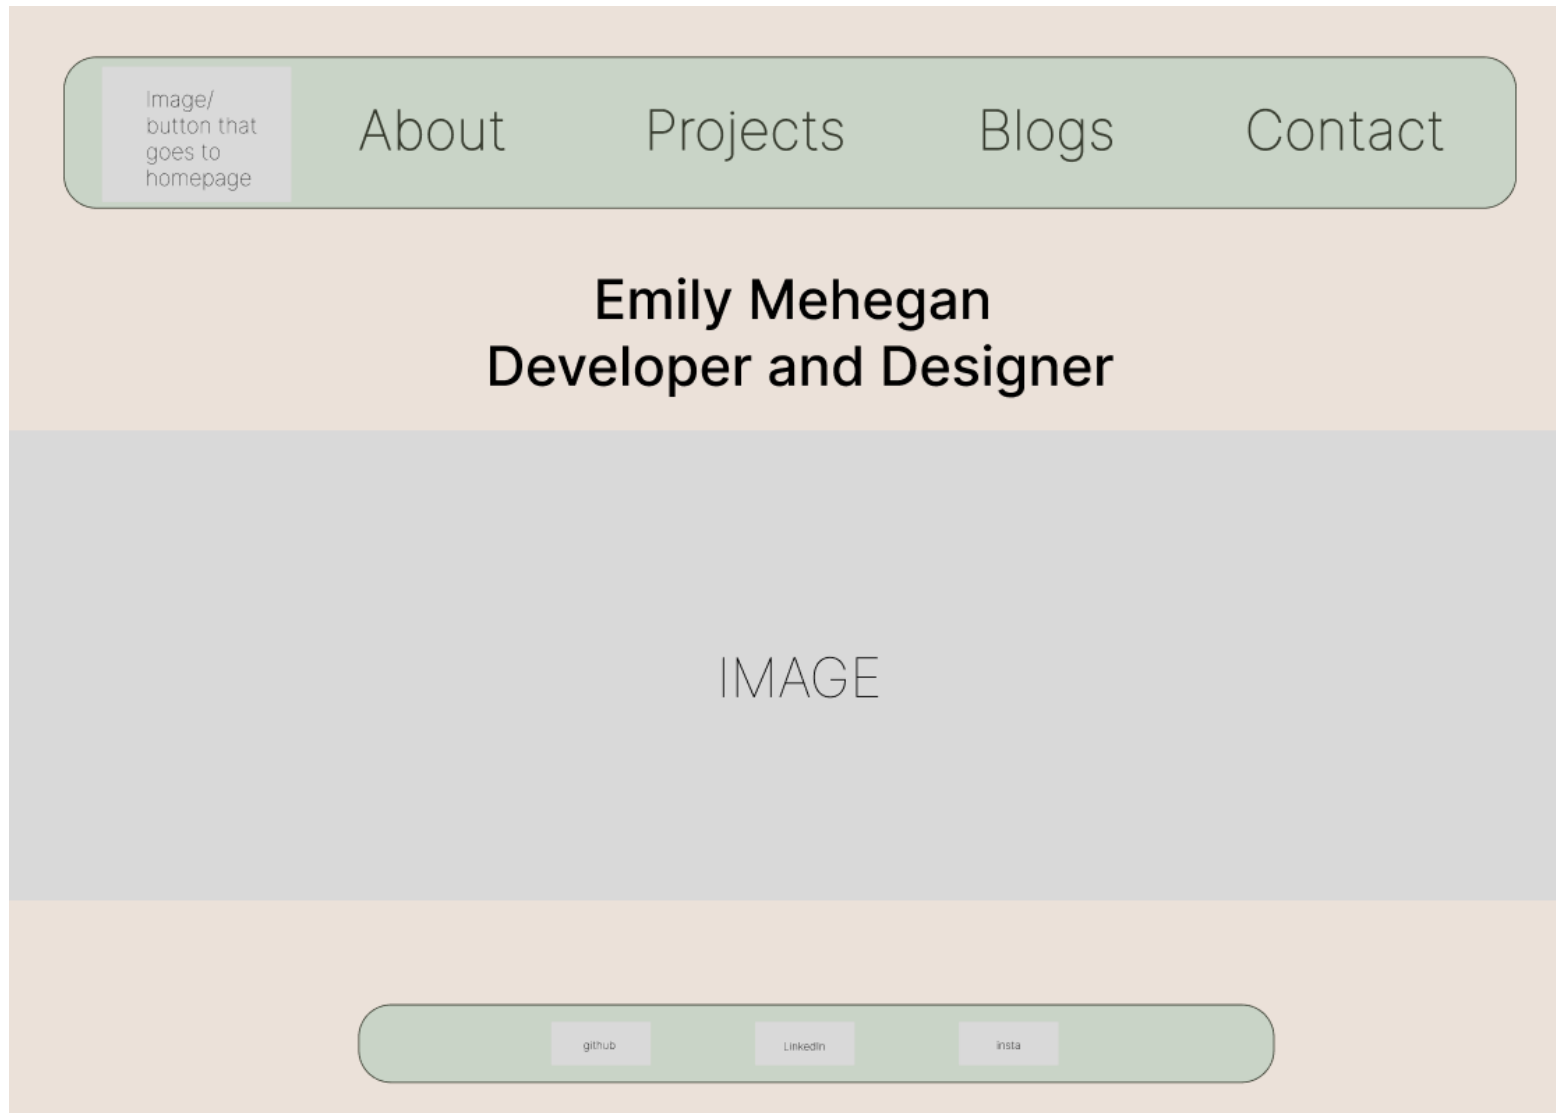

Home

- Simple, bright page

- Clearly name and heading

- Image of nature to match with colours and over aesthetic of the site. matches with Bamboo icon, creating the icon as an association with the homepage

- image relates back to the overall theme of nature and the green colours

- When resizing this page for tablet and mobile, the picture will be relocated to under the written information.

- This was done since the written information and displaying the resume would be more important for the viewer or respective employer to view and be able to access instead of having to scroll.

Colours

#353A2C

The colours that are used repeatedly through-out the site has been complied into their own '_color.scss' file under the defaults and styling page.

The colours chosen for the website are all calming, natural colours that work well together. There is no solid white as it strains the eyes and isn't very dark or light. The muted natural tones flow through the site.

The colours also work well with the nature imagery that is present in the site through icons such as the bamboo branches that lead back to the homepage of the website.

#EBE1D9

The four colours are the only ones beside the black text that are used to aid in achieving this. Utilizing neutral and natural colours for the site assists in the overall aesthetic.

Website Design

The websites overall design is to create an inviting, calm and pleasing environment for the viewer.

Easy accessibility and navigation is another key aspect to the site. It is easy to know where you are and where to find the links and information through-out the website. Everything feels spaced out with no clutter which aids in achieving the overall theme and aesthetic for the site.

Having a continuous theme through-out the website aids in keeping the viewer engaged. It also helps in executing the purpose of the site in demonstrating skills to the target audience and other visitors.

Review

Some challenges when creating the website would be structuring the different screen sizes to fit the webpage content the way it was intended. Organising the code was also confusing and difficult at times but an invited challenge

My favourite part of the designing and build process of the project would be the individual blog pages. Learning how to split the screen into two colours and how to change and manipulate heights was interesting. I am also happy with the over design of the site. Especially the colours and bamboo icon used to link back to the homepage.

An issue with the site would be its accessibility for all people. Images, alt texts for images, headings and simple navigation should be able to help with this issue in regard to the website.
